

Meeting Mascheroni at the Mosa bar

Jacopo Mascheroni is an architect from Milan, representing his firm JMArchitecture. We're talking with Jacopo in relation to a very special project he's been working on: a beach house in Venice. Looking for continuity between the in- and outside, for playfulness, for reflection and for soft contrast, he came up with Mosa's Quartz collection. Not knowing he'd end up with tiles from top to bottom, left to right, inside and out. A mind-blowing concept and an impossible pitch. But thanks to a relation built on trust Jacopo could convince his client to take this giant step.

The result you can see for yourself:
www.archdaily.com/488519/jesolo-lido-pool-villa-jm-architecture/

www.kikkerland.com

Via Ventura 14 MAP G 18

